CATANIA, Italy – The winner of the 2013 BIC Award was announced today at the North South Conference on Intermodal Transportation. The winner of the inaugural award is Mr. Michael Bohlman of the United States.

Since its founding in 1933, the mission of the Bureau International des Containers has been to promote the safe, secure and sustainable expansion of containerization and intermodal transportation. The BIC Award honors an organization or individual for a significant contribution to the advancement of these goals. In announcing the decision, the BIC Board of Directors cited in particular Mr. Bohlman's 40 years active involvement in the International Standards Organization Technical Committee 104 on Freight Containers, including nearly 20 years as Chairman.

BIC Chairman Michael Hennemand stated, "Michael's record of dedication to our industry speaks for itself. Many of us at the BIC have had the pleasure of working alongside Michael over the years and so we have been well placed both to witness and to benefit from his excellent stewardship of TC104, as well as his leadership in other organizations. We are very pleased to be able to honor Michael Bohlman for his many decades of important contribution."

About the BIC

Founded by the International Chamber of Commerce in 1933 as a neutral, non-profit, international organization, the BIC's mission is to promote the safe, secure, sustainable expansion of intermodal transportation. The BIC has played an important role in the growth of containerization with its long-established and active role in the development of standards, and its appointment by the International Standards Organization (ISO) in 1972 as the industry's global container prefix registry – a registry further endorsed by the World Customs Organization (WCO) through requirements in the Customs Conventions on Containers and the Istanbul Convention. Today, the BIC code is the “international calling card” of nearly every container in international trade, allowing for proper identification and facilitating the crossing of borders without delay. As the BIC celebrates its 80th anniversary, it continues its active role in the development of sensible standards in the container industry and the promotion of professional dialogue amongst its 1800+ members, standards bodies, governments and other industry organizations.
